Improved Hydraulic Pumps, For Wells, Rolling Mills, Furnaces, or oth Purposes.

These pumps are great Work on the Reformation made of cast iron, and the water is sucked or forced through lead pipe. For simplicity of construction and durability of action, they are readly supe-rior to any now in use. They have many advan-tages over the common pump, among which are the following:

They are an constructed that mischievousons cannot spoil their action by introducing nails or spikes or any other substances among the valves. as is often done with other pumps, thereby rendering them useless till overhauled. They are warran ed to be perfectly secure from frost, so arranged us to afford ample protection against Pire about the premises on which they are erreted, by simp'y attaching a piece of base, thre' which they will force water to any part of, or over, a three story house. They are particularly adapted for very deep wells, as the leverage can be so re-gulated that a chi'd of six years old can with the greatest case draw water with them from the deepest wells. The objection so justly urged by many, that water is speeded by standing in pump logs. is entirely obvisted in this pump, and fresh water can always be as surely obtained as when drawn with a backet. In situations where it is necessary to raise or force large quenti ies of water to great li-tances for sup dving bei'ers in mile, furnance. &c. these pumps are invaluable, as they can be made f any size, and espable of throwing from
